Under the determination, couriers in New South Wales, including Amazon Flex drivers, must be entitled to a minimum rate of pay of AU$37.80 per hour by 1 July 20

25. For couriers who use vans with a carrying capacity of between 1.5-3 tonnes, a higher minimum rate of AU$43.74 per hour will be required.

According to the Transport Workers' Union (TWU), which brought the matter to the tribunal, the provision of enforceable minimum pay rates for gig-style Amazon Flex drivers is a world first.

“For too long, the likes of Amazon have been able to exploit independent contractor loopholes to sidestep rights and rip workers off fair rates of pay. Today's win confirms that it's entirely possible for all workers to have access to enforceable rights and protections, regardless of their employment status.”

The AU$37.80 per hour rate is AU$10 higher than the current minimum rate offered by Amazon, which said Flex drivers currently earn a minimum of AU$108 for a 4-hour block of deliveries.

The determination follows a Senate committee last week blasting Amazon for paying couriers wages that are below existing industry awards.
